Pair charged in assault on teen

Crime. Suspects in the Rinelle Harper case are also accused of attacking a woman

Police have charged two young men with a pair of sexual assaults, including one on an aboriginal teenage girl, and say they will take a closer look at whether the suspects had anything to do with the death of another First Nations teen last summer.

The two suspects, who are 20 and 17, face several charges, including attempted murder, in the attack on 16-year-old Grade 11 student Rinelle Harper, who was beaten Friday night and left for dead on a walking trail along the Assiniboine River in downtown Winnipeg.

They also face aggravated sexual-assault charges in a second attack that same night on a 23-year-old woman.

Police Supt. Danny Smyth said the two will come under closer scrutiny as police continue to look for 15-year-old Tina Fontaine's killer. Her body was wrapped in plastic and dumped in the Red River in August. Her death has renewed calls for a federal inquiry on missing and murdered aboriginal women.

"We don't have any information right now that would suggest these men were involved with the Tina Fontaine investigation," Smyth said Wednesday. "That being said, we really had little, if any, contact with these men before this. We will certainly take a closer look at them now."

Police say Rinelle was out with friends Friday night when she got separated from her group.

She met two young men who struck up a conversation with her, Smyth said. The three of them are said to have walked to the Assiniboine River where the girl was attacked and ended up in the frigid water.

"Rinelle managed to crawl out of the river a short distance away upstream and she was attacked a second time ... and left unconscious and essentially left for dead on the riverbank," Smyth said.

She was found by a passerby the next morning and taken to hospital in critical condition. She has been upgraded to stable and her family says she is recovering.

Justin James Hudson, 20, along with a 17-year-old who can't be named, are charged with attempted murder, aggravated sexual assault and sexual assault with a weapon.

Victims of sexual assault are not usually identified, but police took the step of releasing Rinelle's name, with the permission of her parents, to "humanize" her and to ask for anyone with information related to her attack to come forward. The public response was overwhelming, Smyth said. THE CANADIAN PRESS

Andrea Giesbrecht case

Oversight denied for autopsy of infant bodies found in locker

There will be no independent pathologist at the autopsies on six infant bodies found in a Winnipeg storage locker.

A judge has rejected the request made by the lawyer defending a woman charged with concealing the bodies.

Andrea Giesbrecht also faces new, unrelated charges of fraud and breaching a court order, so her bail hearing was postponed to Dec. 1.

Defence lawyer Greg Brodsky had argued that since police were allowed to observe the autopsies, his client should be given the same right through an independent party.

But the medical examiner said it would have been like having the accused in the examining room.

The autopsies were already almost complete when they were put on hold while Brodsky's request was heard.

Police have said the state of the remains was such that it could take months of forensic examination before it might be known who the parents were, how the deaths occurred and whether they were full term.

Brodsky has said that, under the law, the deceased will not be considered people if they turn out to be less than 20 weeks' gestation.

A police report read out in court last week said the remains were in kitchen garbage bags, plastic containers and a pail at a U-Haul storage unit.

Bowman praises new attitude at city hall

New members, new tone. Councillors playing nice, so far

winnipeg@metronews.ca

Though it's early days, Mayor Brian Bowman said he's encouraged by the co-operative attitude being shown by the new city council.

"The most important thing for me right out of the gate was to change the tone," he said. "The way council is working together has changed already, and I think it bodes well for how we're going to be able to work on a go-forward basis."

Councillors met briefly Wednesday to sort out appointments to standing policy committees and a few dozen other boards and commissions.

Some of the noteworthy assignments included Janice Lukes (St. Norbert) as councillor responsible for the capital region and Jenny Gerbasi (Fort Rouge-East Fort Garry) as chair of the Winnipeg Housing Steering Committee.

Marty Morantz (Charleswood-Tuxedo) is the council representative on the Assiniboine Park Conservancy, and Bowman will be secretary of Urban Aboriginal Opportunities.

Council rookie Scott Gillingham (St. James) was appointed chair of the Winnipeg Police Board.

The former church minister said his track record of building partnerships with community groups will be valuable.

"I don't have a lot of experience working with the police directly, but my background is that of a collaborator," he said. "I want to work with all the partners, everyone on the board, to function so that we work on behalf of the citizens."

City hall needs your help

Want to join the Bowman administration? The city is looking for citizens to fill open spots on boards and commissions that oversee museums, libraries, arts funding, housing projects and other civic services.

Greg Selinger. Premier has the advantage in leadership vote: Analyst

Manitoba's governing New Democrats are wrestling with a political puzzle — how to hold a leadership race in which one candidate is the premier, who appears intent on staying put during the campaign.

Premier Greg Selinger “absolutely has an advantage” over potential opponents, political scientist Royce Koop from the University of Manitoba said Wednesday.

“He has the power of the purse, as the Americans say. He can spend government money in such a way as to assist his leadership campaign,” he said.

Selinger has been facing an open revolt from senior party members after leading the party to low polling numbers not seen in more than a decade. He ran into opposition over his decision last year to raise the provincial sales tax — something he specifically said he would not do during the last election campaign.

Five cabinet ministers publicly challenged his leadership and resigned last week. On the weekend, Selinger called on the NDP executive to organize a leadership contest — not a review — at the party's annual convention in March. That means his opponents can no longer hope that he would leave on his own if support in a review were low. Instead, they will probably have to put up a leadership candidate of their own to run against him.

Party officials are still working out details of the race, but Selinger said Wednesday he intends on staying on as premier until the vote.

“I’ve made great pains to separate the two issues and I think that’s the appropriate thing to do,” he said.

Selinger said his choice for

Leadership challenge

The leadership challenge comes as Selinger prepares for a throne speech Nov. 20 that will outline the government's agenda for the coming year and open a two-week fall sitting of the legislature.

- The NDP executive has scheduled an emergency meeting Saturday to start sorting out details of a leadership vote.
- Under the party's constitution, the party is not bound to accept the premier's call for a full leadership contest at the annual convention. The provincial council can call a separate convention on leadership at any time, as can a majority of the party's 57 constituency associations.

a leadership contest is based on a little-used provision in the NDP constitution that allows anyone to challenge the party leader at the annual convention. No one has tried to mount such a challenge since the NDP took power in 1999.

The upcoming battle is uncharted territory for the NDP. During the last leadership race in 2009, Selinger was finance minister when he threw his hat in the ring. He and his two competitors resigned their cabinet portfolios on an interim basis. Andrew Swan stepped down from the competitiveness, training and trade portfolio, and Steve Ashton was replaced as emergency measures minister.

The province and the Manitoba Métis Federation (MMF) have partnered to build new affordable housing in Winnipeg and across the province over the next five years.

Kerri Irvin-Ross, housing and community development minister, and MMF President David Chartrand were on hand to officially break ground on the partnership's first effort — three new homes on one lot at 132 Hallet St. in Winnipeg's North Point Douglas neighbourhood — on Wednesday afternoon.

“This property will provide homes for three families,” said Irvin-Ross. “This will address a huge issue that we have in this province and a need, a need to build strong communities.”

Each of the three 1,000-square-foot units will take up a floor in a three-storey building, according to Irvin-Ross, and each will have three bedrooms. The project is expected to cost $710,000 and is scheduled to be finished by next spring.

Funding for the project comes through a five-year, $5.5-million commitment from the province to assist in the new construction of affordable housing for Métis families.

“It's about affordable housing, but for us it is also about being able to continue the expertise that we've built up over 30 years in the field of housing,” explained Will Goodon, MMF minister of housing and property management. “It's something that we want to give back and provide to members of our community.”

The partnership is also planning similar housing projects in Brandon and Selkirk, according to the MMF.

Goldeyes to retire Ace Walker's No. 31

Legend. The pitcher's jersey will be hung up next June

BERNICE PONTANILLA
bernice.pontanilla@metronews.ca

A Fish pitching legend has caught himself a big honour. The Winnipeg Goldeyes announced on Wednesday that Andrew "Ace" Walker's No. 31 will be retired prior to the June 23, 2015 match against the Gary SouthShore RailCats.

Walker, 31, joined the Goldeyes in 2008 after being a farmhand for the MLB's Texas Rangers.

In 2012, his final season with the Fish, the team captured the American Association Championship.

Andrew Collier, the team's general manager, said in a press release that Walker is "one of the all-time great players to put on a Goldeyes uniform."

"Not only did he set many records during his five seasons with the team, but he always took the time to connect with Goldeyes fans off the field and was a great ambassador for the organization," added Collier.

Walker called the retirement of his number mind-blowing.

"When I signed with the Goldeyes ... it's not something that I thought was ever going to happen, and it wasn't a goal or anything like that," he said.

"It's something that came about by having really good teammates. My only goal was winning a championship, which we did in 2012. It's really hard to put into words. I didn't think that something like this would happen to a boy from a small town in Oklahoma.

"I want to thank the Goldeyes organization and my former host family, the Hunts, for letting me play in their city for five years."

Walker holds the team career pitching records for wins (47), complete games (13), games started (105) and innings pitched (692.2).

Federal finances. $1.9B surplus projected for 2015, $4.5B less than expected

Next year's federal budget surplus will be $1.9 billion, the Finance Department says — $4.5 billion less than expected, thanks in large part to the Harper government's multibillion-dollar cost-cutting proposals for families.

Federal Finance
Minister Joe Oliver
THE CANADIAN PRESS

The expected surplus, unveiled Wednesday in the government's fall fiscal and economic update, is a far cry from the $6.4-billion surplus projected in February's budget.

That's because of the Conservative government's recently announced family-friendly tax and benefit initiatives, which will consume an estimated $27 billion from public coffers between 2014-15 and 2019-20.

Finance Minister Joe Oliver, who delivered the update at a luncheon in Toronto, defended the measures, which include higher child-care benefits and a controversial income-splitting plan for families with children.

"We are providing families this financial relief for a simple reason," Oliver said. "Across Canada, Canadians are telling us the same thing."

"The cost of everything, from groceries, to hydro, to housing, is going up."

The update projected that Canada would run a $2.9-billion shortfall this fiscal year, matching the government's projection in the federal February budget.

Nonetheless, the federal government is projecting five straight years of surpluses: $4.3 billion in 2016-17, $5.1 billion in 2017-18, $6.8 billion in 2018-19 and $13.1 billion in 2019-20.

In the short term, however, it remains unclear whether the Harper government will have enough leftover cash to introduce additional cost-cutting.

Viral video. Police say no reason to probe homeless man who set hair on fire

An online video of a Vancouver homeless man being goaded into setting his hair on fire has sparked outrage, though police are not investigating the incident.

The video titled Crack-head Lights Hair On Fire posted to the LiveLeak website was apparently filmed Sunday in a bar district and has generated more than 50,000 views.

The smartphone-quality footage shows a man flicking a lighter by his right ear while young men off screen are heard egging him on. The man hardly responds when the back of his head bursts into flame, while one person urges him to stop as others laugh and the man pats out the fire with his hand.

Const. Brian Montague said that although the video is disturbing, there is no overt force from another person suggesting assault.

"With the short video only, it is difficult to say this is criminal in nature" Montague said.

Great catch. Alberta fishermen discover duck-billed dino fossil

Severe flooding in southwestern Alberta in 2013 may be responsible for two fishermen's discovery of an 80-million-year-old fossil of a possible new species of dinosaur.

A 1,300-kilogram boulder the men found in the Castle River, southwest of Lethbridge, in September contains a partial skull, neck and chest of a duck-billed dinosaur.

Officials at the Royal Tyrrell Museum believe floodwater dislodged the big rock and sent it rolling down the river where the fishermen spotted it.

"It is rather surprising that any part of dinosaur fossil could survive being tumbled in a river full of cobbles and boulders," said Dr. Donald Henderson, curator of dinosaurs.

"Therefore, we needed to quickly remove the specimen from the river system to save it for scientific research. Due to the precarious location of the block in the river, the specimen needed to be airlifted by helicopter."

Henderson said hadrosaur fossils are common in several parts of southern Alberta but this find is different.

"These animals were very common in cretaceous Alberta, but this is an entirely new area to find dinosaurs for us, and gives us hope that we might find more in the future," said Henderson.

The retrieved specimen will undergo research by museum scientists over the next several months to determine whether it is a new species.

Royal Tyrrell spokeswoman Carrie-Ann Lunde said paleontology staff believe the skull is intact and in its original shape. This is considered surprising as fossils are typically found crushed and flattened.

"Something must have happened so that it actually encased the whole dinosaur with sand or mud or something and preserved it three dimensionally," she said.

"It's a cool specimen on multiple layers. Because it is in this very heavy rock it survived, it's encased three dimensionally, it is potentially a new species and it is so well intact."

Hadrosaurs were herbivores and have been found in Asia, Europe and North America.

They are also known as duck-billed dinosaurs due to the similarity of their head to that of modern ducks.

CBC execs shown video of woman's injuries

Ghomeshi. Broadcaster fired Q host after images from his phone showed bruises apparently caused by a cracked rib, sources say

Leading up to the weekend of October 25-26, two CBC executives were invited to the Toronto offices of Denton LLP, a law firm retained by the then Q host Jian Ghomeshi, who was facing allegations that his alleged rough treatment of women was about to become front page news.

After hearing and seeing Ghomeshi's side of the story on Thursday, Oct. 23, CBC executives Chris Boyce and Chuck Thompson left Denton and reported to their bosses that it was "much bigger than we ever thought," a source told Torstar News Service. Ghomeshi was put on leave of absence that day.

According to sources, the CBC executives were shown a variety of information, including a video and text messages, by the Denton lawyers in attendance at the meeting.

Sources say that the video is of a woman who Ghomeshi had dated in the past 10 years. The video shows bruising to the woman's body (she is partially covered in the video) and information provided to CBC that weekend, including text messages Ghomeshi had on his phone, refer to a "cracked rib." A large bruise could be seen on the side of her body.

As Torstar has reported previously, Ghomeshi showed information that, in his opinion, revealed how a person can be bruised during sex and it could "still be consensual," said one source with a close connection to Ghomeshi's strategy that day. Ghomeshi has said he is a practitioner of BDSM — bondage-dominance-sadism-masochism.

Ghomeshi refers to his meetings in his $55-million lawsuit against CBC, filed in court after his firing. In the suit, he states that in the days leading up to his firing he showed "sensitive and private exchanges" involving a woman he had a relationship with. Ghomeshi states that after he showed the material, CBC was satisfied that he "had not engaged in non-consensual sex."

In Torstar's ongoing investigation into allegations that Ghomeshi has attacked women on dates, women have alleged that they have been struck with open and closed hands on various parts of the body and choked. Torstar has heard of multiple allegations from women interviewed as part of the paper's investigation.

The women have told Torstar of bruising, including bruising to the face and head, often in areas of the head covered by hair. Women who have made these allegations say they did not consent to these attacks.

from Torstar, though he has said in a statement posted on Facebook that all of his sexual activities are consensual.

In the Facebook posting he refers to his meeting with CBC in late October.

"On Thursday I voluntarily showed evidence that everything I have done has been consensual. I did this in good faith and because I know, as I have always known, that I have nothing to hide," Ghomeshi wrote.

"CBC execs confirmed that the information provided showed that there was consent. In fact, they later said to me and my team that there is no question in their minds that there has always been consent. They said they're not concerned about the legal side. But then they said that this type of sexual behaviour was unbecoming of a prominent host on the CBC," Ghomeshi stated in his posting.

Ghomeshi, writing to his legions of fans two weeks ago, said that he understands that his preferred approach to sex may not appeal to everyone.

He said his practices may be "strange, enticing, weird, normal, or outright offensive to others. We all have our secret life."

According to sources, CBC did not leave the meeting at Ghomeshi's law firm with the original video or a copy of the video.

U.S.-China climate deal may force Canada to keep pace

Canadian policy-makers can expect to come under intense pressure now that the United States and China have reached a ground-breaking agreement on curbing greenhouse gas emissions.

The Conservative government in Ottawa has long argued that curbing Canada's emissions on the global scale was not a priority when major emitters were unwilling to act.

Regulation of the oil and gas sector has been promised — and delayed — for years, even as the country falls well behind on its international commitment to curb emissions 17 per cent below 2005 levels by the year 2020.

The surprise announcement from U.S. President Barack Obama in Beijing commits Canada's dominant trading partner to even deeper emissions cuts by 2025.

David McLaughlin, the former head of the federal Round Table on the Environment and the Economy, says the bedrock of federal climate policy has always been alignment with

Washington — but Canada is now clearly falling behind.

Environmental groups say Canada has run out of excuses for its inaction on emissions, while China's new commitment to renewable energy means Canada could miss out on a global economic boom in clean technology.

She says Fleury's intellectual capacity is "pretty extraordinary," shown by his ability to take in information, assimilate it and act on it.

Now 46, Fleury still sees himself as a work in progress. But his life journey is no longer two steps forward, one step back.

"It's only a half-a-step back now or a quarter-step back," Fleury said in a recent interview. "Because I have tools."

"Nice," interjected Barthel.

"Whereas before I didn't have any tools," Fleury continued. "I reached in my toolbox and I couldn't even build a square box ... because I didn't have anything. Now I have a few screws, a screwdriver. So I can build some stuff."

The exchange, in the restaurant of a downtown hotel, reads like an excerpt from Conversations With a Rattlesnake.

The book is written in the form of an extended conversation between Fleury and his therapist. It's the product of "two and a half years of constant conversation," according to Barthel.

"The difficulty was I couldn't keep up with Theo," she said. "He would change so fast that all of the transcripts from the recordings, they were way out of date by the time I would get to them."

"In essence everything got written in about four months. But the transformational process was over a two-and-a-half-year conversation, daily conversation."

Barthel, who now teaches therapists, says it is not traditional therapy — if for no other reason that no one would have as much access to a therapist as Fleury did. It was also a collaborative, rather than a patient-therapist, relationship.

Fleury evolved over the months, with the first 18 months leading up to the real meat of the discussion.

The book comes in a challenging format. But the give-and-take between the two does show movement and how they reached their conclusions. It's like being a silent partner in a marathon self-help session.

Barthel says people seem drawn to the former hockey player by his honesty and vulnerability, reasoning that if he can change his life, so can they.

London. New book: Jesus, Mary Magdalene tied knot

A researcher who has been criticized for his revisionist Biblical theories says he has new evidence that Jesus was married to Mary Magdalene and that early Christians considered her a deity.

Canadian-Israeli documentary-maker Simcha Jacobovici says an ancient manuscript in the British Library offers a glimpse at an early version of Christianity.

"This shows that Mary Magdalene really got ripped off" in theology, Jacobovici said Wednesday at the launch of The Lost Gospel, a book co-authored with York University religious studies Professor Barrie Wilson.

But many religious scholars are skeptical about the theory, which is based on The Story of Joseph and Aseneth. Jacobovici and Wilson studied a 1,500-year-old Syriac-language version of the story in the London library.

Trade Center workers trapped 69 stories up

New York. Firefighters cut hole in new tower's glass to pull window washers to safety an hour later

Two window washers were trapped for more than an hour Wednesday on scaffolding dangling 69 stories up the side of 1 World Trade Center before firefighters cut through the glass and pulled them to safety.

The dramatic rescue occurred on the south side of the 104-storey building, where the open-topped platform hung at about a 45-degree angle and swayed slightly in the wind.

The fire department said the workers were tethered and communicating with rescuers during their ordeal.

thick glass was six feet tall, even with rescuers' heads as they stood at the precipice. The workers were brought through it at about 2:15 p.m.

Hundreds of millions of miles from Earth, a spacecraft made history Wednesday by successfully landing on the surface of a speeding comet — an audacious first designed to answer the universe's big questions.

The landing on comet 67P/Churyumov-Gerasimenko required precision, as even the slightest error could have resulted in cosmic calamity.

Indications were that the spacecraft touched down almost perfectly, save for an unplanned bounce, said Stephan Ulamec, head of the lander operation.

But thrusters that were meant to push the lander, called Philae, onto the surface, and harpoons that would have anchored it to the comet failed to deploy properly. Initial data from the spacecraft indicated that it lifted off again, turned and then came to rest.

"Today we didn't just land once; we maybe even landed twice," said Ulamec.

The landing team at mission control in Darmstadt, Germany, first had to sweat through a tense seven-hour countdown that began when Philae dropped from the agency's Rosetta space probe as both it and the comet hurtled through space at 66,000 kilometres an hour.

The landing is the highlight of Rosetta's decade-long mission to study comets and learn more about the origins of these celestial bodies. Scientists have likened these comets — believed to number in the trillions — to time capsules that are virtually unchanged since the earliest moments of the universe.

"By studying one in enormous detail, we can hope to unlock the puzzle of all of the others," said Mark McCaughrean, a senior scientific adviser to the mission.

The mission will also give researchers the opportunity to test the theory that comets brought organic matter and

Ebola. Hospital that treated only U.S. patient to die settles with family

The hospital that treated the only Ebola patient to die in the United States will pay his relatives an undisclosed sum and create a charitable foundation in his name, the family's attorney said Wednesday.

The agreement heads off a potential lawsuit from relatives of Thomas Eric Duncan, who died Oct. 8 at Texas Health Presbyterian Hospital Dallas.

Duncan was initially sent away from the hospital's emergency room with antibiotics, something hospital administrators have acknowledged was a mistake. He would return to the hospital in an ambulance two days after his release and was quickly diagnosed with possible signs of Ebola, which has killed more than 5,000 people in West Africa.

Attorney Les Weisbrod declined to say how much the settlement was worth but said it was a "very good deal" that would provide for Duncan's parents and his four children. Texas Health Presbyterian Hospital said in a statement that it was "grateful to reach this point of reconciliation and healing for all involved."

Weisbrod and Duncan's nephew, Josephus Weeks, both credited Presbyterian's officials for moving quickly to settle the case and for acknowledging the hospital's mistakes.

Duncan's family would have faced a very high bar had they filed a lawsuit against the hospital. Texas medical malpractice law places a $250,000 limit on non-economic damages related to pain and suffering.

It also gives extra protection to emergency-room doctors and nurses. Instead of just proving that Duncan's doctors were negligent in his care, Duncan's family would have to prove that any negligence was "wilful and wanton" — essentially, that doctors knew they were causing harm when they treated Duncan. # William Boyd's latest book brought to you by Land Rover

Art + commerce.

Author's branded book has shaken and stirred the literary community

Soon after turning out the latest James Bond novel, British author William Boyd agreed to write another thriller based on a world-famous brand.

The Land Rover. Boyd's nearly 17,000-word story, The Vanishing Game, coming out Wednesday as a free download through Amazon.com, Apple and www.thevanishinggame.com, tells of a 35-year-old British actor named Alec Dunbar and the troubles he encounters when a pretty young woman convinces him to deliver a flask filled with clear liquid from London to Scotland. His transport is a certain four-wheel-drive vehicle.

Boyd, paid in the low six figures for the project, said he signed on because Land Rover made so few requests.

"They said they wanted an adventure and they said, 'Somewhere in this adventure it would be good if a Land Rover appeared,'" the 62-year-old author said during a recent telephone interview. He said it was left entirely up to him how prominent a role the vehicle would play.

"I invented the story, I invented the characters, I invented the locations," said Boyd, whose novels include The New Confessions and Brazzaville Beach.

Boyd's story can be read as a traditional book or as an interactive narrative through the dedicated website. An audio track features a voiceover and music. Photographs and moving images provide a backdrop to the words.

If The Vanishing Game itself cannot be called "a Land Rover story," the company provides other reminders. The Land Rover logo appears at the top of the screen, and the occasional word or phrase, such as "river" or "cross country," links to a picture of a Land Rover or a real-life story about a Land Rover user.

The literary community has mostly shunned commercial endorsements, although there are precedents for Boyd's book. In 2001, Fay Weldon was commissioned by Bulgari to write The Bulgari Connection, in which she worked in references to the jewelry company. Julia Alvarez wrote a poem for Absolut vodka, and several authors, including Elmore Leonard and Lisa Scottoline, contributed essays for a 1990s Coca-Cola campaign. A recent e-book, Hillary Carlip's Find Me I'm Yours, was funded in part by the makers of Sweet 'N Low.

Invasion of the drones

The U.S. government is getting near-daily reports — and sometimes two or three a day — of drones flying near airplanes and helicopters or close to airports without permission, federal and industry officials tell The Associated Press. It's a sharp increase from just two years ago when such reports were still unusual.

Many of the reports are filed with the Federal Aviation Administration by airline pilots. But other pilots, airport officials and local authorities often file reports as well, said the officials, who agreed to discuss the matter only on the condition that they not be named because they weren't authorized to speak publicly. Michael Toscano, president of a drone industry trade group, said FAA officials also have verified the increase to him.

While many of the reports are unconfirmed, raising the possibility that pilots may have mistaken a bird or another plane in the distance for a drone, the officials said other reports appear to be credible.

The FAA tightly restricts the use of drones, which could cause a crash if one collided with a plane or was sucked into an engine.

A man launches a small drone to fly over the scene of an explosion in New York in March. U.S. government officials have been inundated with reports of drones flying near aircraft and airports without permission. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS FILE

Small drones usually aren't visible on radar to air-traffic controllers, particularly if they're made of plastic or other composites.

"It should not be a matter of luck that keeps an airplane and a drone apart," said Rory Kay, a training captain at a major airline and a former Air Line Pilots Association safety committee chairman. "So far we've been lucky because if these things are operating in the sky unregulated, unmonitored and uncontrolled, the possibility of a close proximity event or even a collision has to be of huge concern."

The FAA requires that all drone operators receive permission from the agency, called a certificate of authorization, before they can fly their unmanned aircraft.

IN WHICH JOHN STARTS GOING TO YOGA

I've started attending yoga classes.

You'll notice I didn't say I'm DOING yoga, because that would involve athletic poses and rhythmic breathing and other yogic things I haven't mastered yet because I spend most of each class lying motionless and sucking air, like I'm doing my best Iron Lung impression.

The classes have been a long, difficult journey (both of them), but they're necessary. My girlfriend's been suggesting yoga for months, because she noticed that my joints have the same range of motion as the original 1980s Star Wars figures — the ones where the Jedis were all karate experts because the only way to hit Darth Vader was with a downward chop. I don't think I'll ever get my body to GI Joe swivel-arm battle grip, but I'm hopeful with yoga I'll reach Masters of the Universe twist-waist, power-punch action.

It's been a long time coming. I've avoided yoga for 20 years because I read an interview once where a studio owner said, "It's best to do yoga in the morning when the world's magnetic field is strongest," when any fool knows that the Earth's magnetic field peaks at 4 p.m., after a brief nap. I figured arguing about pseudoscience was not the best path to inner peace, so my girlfriend assured me she'd choose a no-nonsense teacher, which meant I could focus entirely on how much pain I'm in.

HE SAYS

And how'd it go? Great! I was terrible at everything, which took a lot of pressure off. My biggest problem was that the instructor said not to look up from my poses, but I had to because the instructions make no sense if you've never heard them before.

For instance, people in yoga seem to call the butt area the sit bones. "Check out Kim Kardashian's sit bones!" is a common phrase among yoga practitioners.

So I'd have my head down and I'd hear something like "Heel-toe, now lunge your sit bones, breeeeathe into the belly of your hamstrings, and invert yourself!"

No more chasing tail

Red deer graze following the end of the rutting season on Wednesday in Glen Etive, Scotland. The rutting season sees the large red deer stags compete against each other for mating rights and they can be heard roaring and bellowing in an attempt to attract the hinds. The rut draws to a close in early November when the males will spend the winter feeding to regain strength for the following year's season. JEFF J. MITCHELL/GETTY IMAGES

Calm after mating storm for red deer

After months of butting horns, chasing tail and avoiding gunshots, the male red deer population of Scotland can finally relax and look forward to quieter times.

The exhausting rutting season has just come to an end in Glen Etive, Scotland.

Deer and other ruminant mammals engage in rutting season, which is triggered by shorter day lengths, in the fall.

During this mating season, stags will rub their antlers on trees, fight each other (sometimes leading to serious injury) and attempt to herd females in estrus together.

Since throwing caution to the wind in their attempt to hook up with as many females as possible makes them easy targets, the breeding season is also a popular time for hunting.

The stags are often in rough shape after the rut, and now is the time for them to rest. METRO

Weight loss

20%

All that chasing and fighting can result in a huge weight loss. Some research shows losses of as high as 20 per cent of a stag's total body weight.

Personal journey

I was terrible at everything, which took a lot of pressure off.

I'd glance up half expecting to see my classmates inside out, their internal organs looking blissful, but instead I'd see my instructor saying, "Don't look up!"

So I was graceless and clueless. I did have one thing going for me, though: I didn't care. My girlfriend always comes back from class with a mental chart of where she ranked amongst her classmates in yoga skill, which seems like wasted effort if you're not in the World Yoga Championships.

My imperviousness to outside criticism has a nice yoganness to it, though I guess being proud of it kind of ruins it too, so I'll shut up now. And if anyone wants to make fun of me for trying yoga, no matter how ineptly, I suggest we step outside so I can kick your sit bones up and down the street. Namaste.

Upcoming EP.

SC Mira sold its soul for rock 'n' roll.

OK, not really, but in October, the Winnipeg band released a Halloween mixtape titled Candy Apples and Razor Blades, a three-song medley that features two tracks from Brian De Palma's 1974 musical film Phantom of the Paradise, as well as a cover of Halloween by horror punk pioneers The Misfits.

Released in 1974, Phantom of the Paradise combines The Phantom of the Opera, The Picture of Dorian Gray and Faust, in which Winslow Leach, a composer and singer, makes a deal with the devil, the devil in this case being a satanic record producer named Swan.

The film failed at the box office everywhere but Winnipeg, where it ran for four months and then on and off until 1976. The soundtrack sold an amazing 20,000 copies in Winnipeg alone.

"I grew up watching it," says guitarist/vocalist SC, which stands for Stephanie Catherine. Mira is her grandma's name.

many times. My dad showed it to me and my siblings as kids, and I remember thinking it was so scary."

"Winslow's mask still freaks me out," adds guitarist Tyler Wagar.

The mixtape is a teaser to SC Mira's debut EP, Waiting Room Baby, which was mixed by Arcade Fire producer Howard Bilerman and is set to be released in spring of 2015.

In August, SC Mira released the EP's first single, On My Own, which was inspired by SC's battle with cancer. At age 19, the now 24-year-old was diagnosed with cancer in her knee.

"I had a lot of surgeries and it's still a physical struggle for me," she says.

"There were a lot of complications so I still can't really get around totally OK, and I break my foot all the time by walking on it.

"That's what On My Own is about, being stuck and wanting to move forward and still being held back by this presence.

Andy Cohen, left, speaks with Teresa and Joe Giudice from The Real Housewives of New Jersey on his show, Watch What Happens Live. In his new book, Cohen discusses both his talk show and his role as a Real Housewives producer. CHARLES SYKES/BRAVO

Housewives exec offers up some of his own reality

Books. Andy Cohen initially left a lot of things out of his new memoir, then went back and filled in gaps

Reading another person's diary is usually the stuff of daydreams or snooping, but Bravo Media's Watch What Happens Live host Andy Cohen is opening up his journal in The Andy Cohen Diaries: A Deep Look at a Shallow Year.

The book, published by Henry Holt and Co., is inspired by The Andy Warhol Diaries, published after the artist's death.

Cohen sat down at a midtown New York steakhouse owned by a close friend (often mentioned in his book) for a recent interview. He has a regular table across from his caricature that decorates the wall, along with hundreds of drawings of other celebrities.

The 46-year-old knows the staff and greets them by name. "It's my Regal Beagle," he joked, referring to the '70s sitcom Three's Company.

He talked about sharing his diary and being an executive producer of The Real Housewives shows.

Is it strange to put yourself out there and let people see who you are?

Yes, at first I went into this and I was like, 'I'm not going to talk about dating or boyfriends.' Then, months later, I went back and filled stuff in ... I was like, 'I'm just putting all this in there. It's just fun.' ... The longer you do something, you feel more open to the process.

There's an original entry about a Britney Spears interview where I had edited myself. I went back and was like, 'I need to put my real impressions of that day.' I have to book my show; I don't want to sell out my guests, but if Mariah Carey comes in, I want to tell people what that experience was like.

Will your fans know you better after reading this book?

I think they know a version of me (now). I think when you're live on TV in an unscripted environment, a lot slips through the cracks of your real self. People can read my face, they know what I'm thinking.

What's it like when you have friends as guests on your show? (Cohen's close pals include Sarah Jessica Parker, Liam Neeson, Anderson Cooper and Kelly Ripa.)

I remember one of the first times Sarah Jessica was on, I asked her about dating J.F.K. (John F. Kennedy) Jr., which is something we've certainly talked about off-camera. And I remember I turned to her in the commercial break and was like, 'Was that OK?' She gave me a sign, like it was fine, but surprising.

Andy Cohen, host and producer, on his decision to pull no punches in his book

Which Real Housewives show is the most stressful? It's all cyclical. It usually depends on what's in production and what's airing.

Do you listen to any of the feedback you get on the shows from social media? You have to take it all with a grain of salt, but I pay attention to it. I write in the book that people were very vocal that we change up the New Jersey Housewives this season. We changed the cast and people were like, 'We don't like the new cast members. Bring back the originals.'

OUR TAKE ON THE WORLD OF CELEBRITIES

Zachary Quinto ALL PHOTOS: GETTY IMAGES

Zachary's Out on his views about gay community

For Out magazine's 20th anniversary edition of its annual list of the most prominent LGBT personalities, the Out 100, the editors couldn't decide on a single honoree to feature on the cover. So they picked four. Copies of the magazine are going out featuring Zachary Quinto, Ellen Page, Sam Smith and Orange Is the New Black star Samira Wiley. And they even get fun honorary titles, though they kind of all sound like the same thing: Quinto is the artist of the year, while Page is the entertainer of the year, Smith is the breakout of the Year and Wiley is the ingenue of the year. Go ahead, switch those around and see if anything really changes. Quinto, for his part, uses his time with the magazine to try to combat an encroaching blasé attitude, especially among younger members of the gay community.

"I think there's a tremendous sense of complacency in the LGBT community," he says. "AIDS has lost the edge of horror it possessed when it swept through the world in the '80s. Today's generation sees it more as something to live with and something to be much less fearful of. And that comes with a sense of, dare I say, laziness."

Yes, Kim's a mom, but can you expect any better of her?

NED EHRBAR

It's still unclear whether Kim Kardashian's oiled-up, tush-exposing cover shot for Paper "broke the Internet," as the magazine was hoping — some might say it's been broken for a while already — but people definitely have opinions about it. While husband Kanye West was clearly supportive of her efforts, others were less than pleased. Comedian Billy Eichner went on a tear, offering several tweets about the photo, the best being, "Oh God look at what Renee Zellweger did now!" But others didn't find the situation so humorous. Glee star Naya Rivera popped up on Kardashian's Instagram post with the comment, "I normally don't, but ... you're someone's mother." True, but she also built a multimillion-dollar media empire off of just one homemade sex tape, so let's not all act so surprised.

It's the mushroom's time to shine

Mushroom, Leek and Gruyère Tart. With a puff pastry base, the flavours of this dish come together perfectly

"If vegetables were looking to elect a spokesperson, I'd nominate mushrooms," writes Charmian Christie in The Messy Baker.

"A bit of heat brings out the best in them. And when things get downright hot, they maintain their composure, refusing to dissolve into an incoherent mash.

"They work graciously with almost any herb, are effusively complementary to dairy, and are as comfortable with fancy-dress pastry as they are with a Casual Friday slice of toast.

"With a support staff of herbs, cheese, and garlic, this recipe lets the earthiness of mushrooms shine."

1. Preheat the oven to 425 F.

2. On a sheet of parchment paper cut to fit a rimmed baking sheet, roll the puff pastry sheet out to a 10-inch

Ingredients

- 1 sheet commercial puff pastry
- 3 tbsp unsalted butter
- 2 cloves garlic
- 2 sprigs fresh thyme, leaves only
- 2 cups thinly sliced leeks, white parts only, sliced lengthwise and slivered into half moons
- 16 oz cremini or Portobello mushrooms, cut into 1-inch pieces
- Ground black pepper (optional)
- 3 oz grated Gruyère cheese square. Using a sharp knife, gently score the pastry an inch inside the outer edge, being careful not to cut all the way through. Place the parchment with the scored pastry onto a rimmed baking sheet. Refrigerate while you prepare the filling.

3. In a large skillet over medium heat, melt the butter. When it bubbles, grate the garlic on a micro-plane into the pan. Add the thyme. Cook gently for 1 minute. Add the leeks and cook until they begin to soften. Add the mushrooms and cook until they are soft, but not weeping, juices.

Place the mushroom filling into a strainer and let drain for a few minutes.

4. Spoon the mushroom filling onto the pastry, being careful to keep inside

Repaint that worn-out tub and then reward yourself with a candlelit bath. iStock

Ready to take the plunge? Refinish your old bathtub

DIY. Paint that tired tub, then add a few spa-like accessories and soak up the new vibe

Bathrooms might not always be the most welcoming space in a home, but they're among the rooms we use every day. Which means they can start to show wear and tear more quickly than expected.

The bathtub is one area that can begin to rust, crack or mould. With a little help and fixing-up, your tub can look better than ever.

Here are some tips on how to upgrade and transform the bath area into a relaxing space to escape cold winter weather.

Making the upgrade

To avoid the expensive costs of replacing a tub, re-painting it is a quick fix at an affordable price.

First, purchase bathtub paint or a tub/tile refinishing kit from a local hardware store. Next, make sure to remove all excess debris in and around the tub.

Proceed to give it a good scrub with a bleach-based product to help remove any grime or gloss. Once clean, sand down the tub with 400-600 grit wet/dry sandpaper and rinse away the dirt as you work.

Before going any further, make sure to have a respiratory mask, chemical goggles, and gloves to remain protected from the fumes. The products are extremely strong, so be sure to turn on the vent in the washroom, place a fan near the door and open windows throughout the home.

Apply two to three smooth, thin coats of paint and allow approximately one to two hours for drying.

Note that the paint gets very sticky, so try to apply it quickly. Let everything dry and remember not to use the bath at any point during the process.

Glam it up

Once the heavy duty work is complete, complement the new tub with other decorative elements.

Replace the shower rod with a new one or repaint the existing one for a fresh look. Select a funky shower curtain to incorporate some colour into the bathroom.

Add candles or flowers to the surrounding area to give it a spa-like feel or display bath salts in glass jars. Finally, consider upgrading the shower head or the faucet for a sharper look.

Furniture. Charles and Ray Eames' Soft Pad chair gets a revamp

Swiss design brand Vitra has unveiled its Soft Pad chair collection in a new autumnal colour palette for the cold season.

Created by famous American designers Charles and Ray Eames in 1969, the Soft Pad combines an industrial metal frame with soft cushioning for a voluptuous aesthetic.

The design has been modified to incorporate viscoelastic foam and a new colour palette in semi-aniline leather with a natural grain and an appealingly soft surface.

Created by Hella Jongerius, the new colourways encompass a range of 22 muted, earthy shades which highlight the natural quality and smooth texture of this fine leather. The new designs were unveiled earlier this month at Orgatec.

The hues come in three colour groups: warm reddish-browns, cool greens and blues, and contrasting shades with a focus on white-grey-black. The new look also includes contrast stitching, which lends them a handcrafted quality.

Contemporary studio Vitra was founded in 1934 as a shop-fitting business and has gone on to become one of the most pioneering names in the interior design business. AFP

Luck finally sides with Jets' Bogosian

THE HOCKEY NEWS
Ronnie Shuker
winnipeg@metronews.ca

Zach Bogosian has had a hard-luck NHL career thus far, but perhaps his karma is changing.

In 2008, he was drafted third overall. One spot higher, he goes to the Los Angeles Kings instead of Drew Doughty and wins a couple Stanley Cups before he turns 23 years old. One spot lower, he goes to St. Louis, where he makes the post-season with the Blues four times before that age.

Instead, he's drafted by Atlanta, moves to Winnipeg, where the Thrashers become the Jets, and misses the play-offs every year.

On top of that, Bogosian is beset by injuries. He breaks his leg less than a month into his rookie season, forcing him out of 28 games. Hand, shoulder, wrist, groin and a slew of undisclosed upper-body and lower-body ailments follow, causing him to miss 70 more since.

Now 24 years old, he looks like he's getting some good luck coming his way.

Not to jinx him, but Bogosian may finally become one half of an elite shutdown defencemen pairing Thrashers GM Don Waddell saw in him more than six years ago.

The offensive potential he displayed in his first two years in Atlanta are all but gone, though that's not what the Jets need from him anyway. They need a big, bruising defenceman to log heavy minutes against opponents' top lines.

And they're getting it.

Bogosian leads Winnipeg in average even-strength ice time at 18:24, and he's near the top overall on the team with 22:42 per game. And most of those minutes are against the best other teams are throwing at the Jets.

Critics will point to the doughnut under the goals column and his measly six assists as proof he's not the elite defenceman he should be for being drafted third overall. Fair enough.

By the numbers

51.6%

Zach Bogosian's possession stats this season are 47 per cent (Corsi close) and 51.6 per cent (Fenwick close).

At this point, however, that's not the way to look at Bogosian. If the Jets are to get more production from their back end, they should move Byfuglien back — as this columnist has previously suggested — instead of looking for Bogosian to produce more offensively. He's not that type of player.

Rightly or wrongly, Bogosian will always be tied to the two defencemen he was sandwiched between at the 2008 draft. He'll never be the player Doughty is and may never reach the heights Pietrangelo has the potential to hit, but he can be a beast defensively, perhaps even one of the league's best.

All he needs is for his recent good fortune to continue.

Receiver Duron Carter has plenty of familiar faces joining him on the East Division all-star squad, but tackle Jeff Perrett isn't one of them.

Carter was among 11 Montreal Alouettes named to the team Wednesday in voting conducted by the Football Reporters of Canada and nine CFL head coaches. Surprisingly missing from that group was Perrett, 30, the Als' nominee for the league's outstanding lineman award.

"It's kind of weird," Perrett said. "People vote how they're going to vote, and there's not much I can do about it."

Montreal had the most all-star selections, finishing one ahead of the Hamilton Tiger-Cats and two in front of the Edmonton Eskimos. The expansion Ottawa Redblacks were the only team not to have any players named.

Edmonton's Adarius Bowman, the CFL's leading receiver this season with 112 catches for 1,456 yards and six TDs, was the lone unanimous selection.

McDavid's WJC in doubt after injury

Junior hockey. Projected No. 1 2015 NHL draft pick breaks bone in hand with world juniors just over six weeks away

Connor McDavid will be out five to six weeks with a fractured bone in his right hand, an injury that could put his participation for Canada in the world junior championship in doubt.

The Erie Otters announced Wednesday afternoon that McDavid suffered a fracture of the fifth metacarpal bone in a fight Tuesday night with Mississauga's Bryson Cianfrone when his punch missed and hit the top of the boards. The fractured bone extends from the base of the pinkie finger to the wrist.

McDavid will not need surgery.

Reached by phone at his hotel in Regina before official word of a time frame, Canadian world junior coach Benoit Groulx said it's too early to know about McDavid's status

ATP Finals. Raonic desperately searching for his powerful serve

Canadian Milos Raonic tried to repair his ailing service game Wednesday ahead of his must-win match against Japan's Kei Nishikori at the ATP Finals.

Raonic struggled in his first two round-robin matches at the season-ending event, bowing out in straight sets to Roger Federer on Sunday and Andy Murray on Tuesday.

The Canadian's powerful serve has been rather muted at the O2 Arena, with noticeable drops in both speed and first-serve percentage. Raonic was looking for solutions in Wednesday's practice session with coaches Ivan Ljubicic and Riccardo Piatti.

"Whatever the reason is, I have 24 hours to solve it," Raonic said. "I'm going to need to (fix it) if I want to have any hope. There's no way around that. It's something I've got to do."
